JANUARY PROGRAMS

JANUARY 3RD -- COLOR MEETING

One of our own camera club members, Bernard M. Blass, will be the speaker for the January 3rd meeting. Bernie is one of our top color printers and he plans to bring many of his prints for us to see. He will emphasize during his program the darkroom work that is involved in creating his prize winning photographs.

JANUARY 17TH -- B&W MEETING

Our speaker for the January 17th meeting is Robert Schafer, a Free-lance industrial photographer. With a background in physical sciences and the arts, Mr. Schafer is concerned with the rigidity with which the eyes perceive and how much visual experience is missed. His talk will deal with visual consciousness. He believes that the role of the photographer is to create visual or sensual experiences for the viewer. In trying to develop an experiential vocabulary, he will discuss elements of composition, especially the relation between negative and positive spaces.

AVAILABLE LIGHT

Available light, sometimes referred to as existing light, includes artificial light which naturally exists in the scene. It is the light that happens to be on the scene, such as the light from table and floor lamps, ceiling fixtures, fluorescent lamps, spotlights, neon signs, windows, skylights, candles, and fireplaces. It is the type of light found in homes, schools, museums, churches, restaurants, stage shows, and auditoriums. Outdoor scenes after dark are considered to be existing or available light situations. It does not include sunsets or sunrises. Available light is characterized by lower light levels than you would encounter in daylight outdoors.
