

My Thinking at the Genesis...

- Lots of ways to do this, mine isn't necessarily the best.
- But... I wanted to have the following:
 - My name on the domain
 - Total control over the look and feel
 - Cheap

Website Creation: The Steps

- 1) Make a folder that contains your website.
- 2) In Photoshop or Lightroom, create your photo galleries in subfolders of your main page folder.
- 3) On your local computer, use an HTML editor (Dreamweaver, FrontPage) to create your “index.htm” page with links.
- 4) Buy a website domain name on a web hosting service.
- 5) Upload website to your hosting service.
- 6) Alert the world!

And now, onto the live
portion of our program...

Here's where we...

- Used MS Word to make a main web page.
- Used MS Frontpage to make another web page.
- Used Photoshop and Bridge to create a photo gallery
- Used Lightroom to create a Flash slideshow photo gallery.

New features:

- Normal FTP connections now always attempt to negotiate secure FTP over TLS
- Added option to force use of insecure plain FTP to Site Manager
- Kiosk mode option can now also be read from FileZilla.xml, with fzdefaults.xml having priority if setting exists in both files

Bugfixes and minor changes:

- Fix memory leak in directory cache
- Compatibility with obscure DOS servers using forward slashes as path delimiter
- MSW: Horizontal scroll bar in file lists and queue did not appear if changing column widths

Glossary & Resources

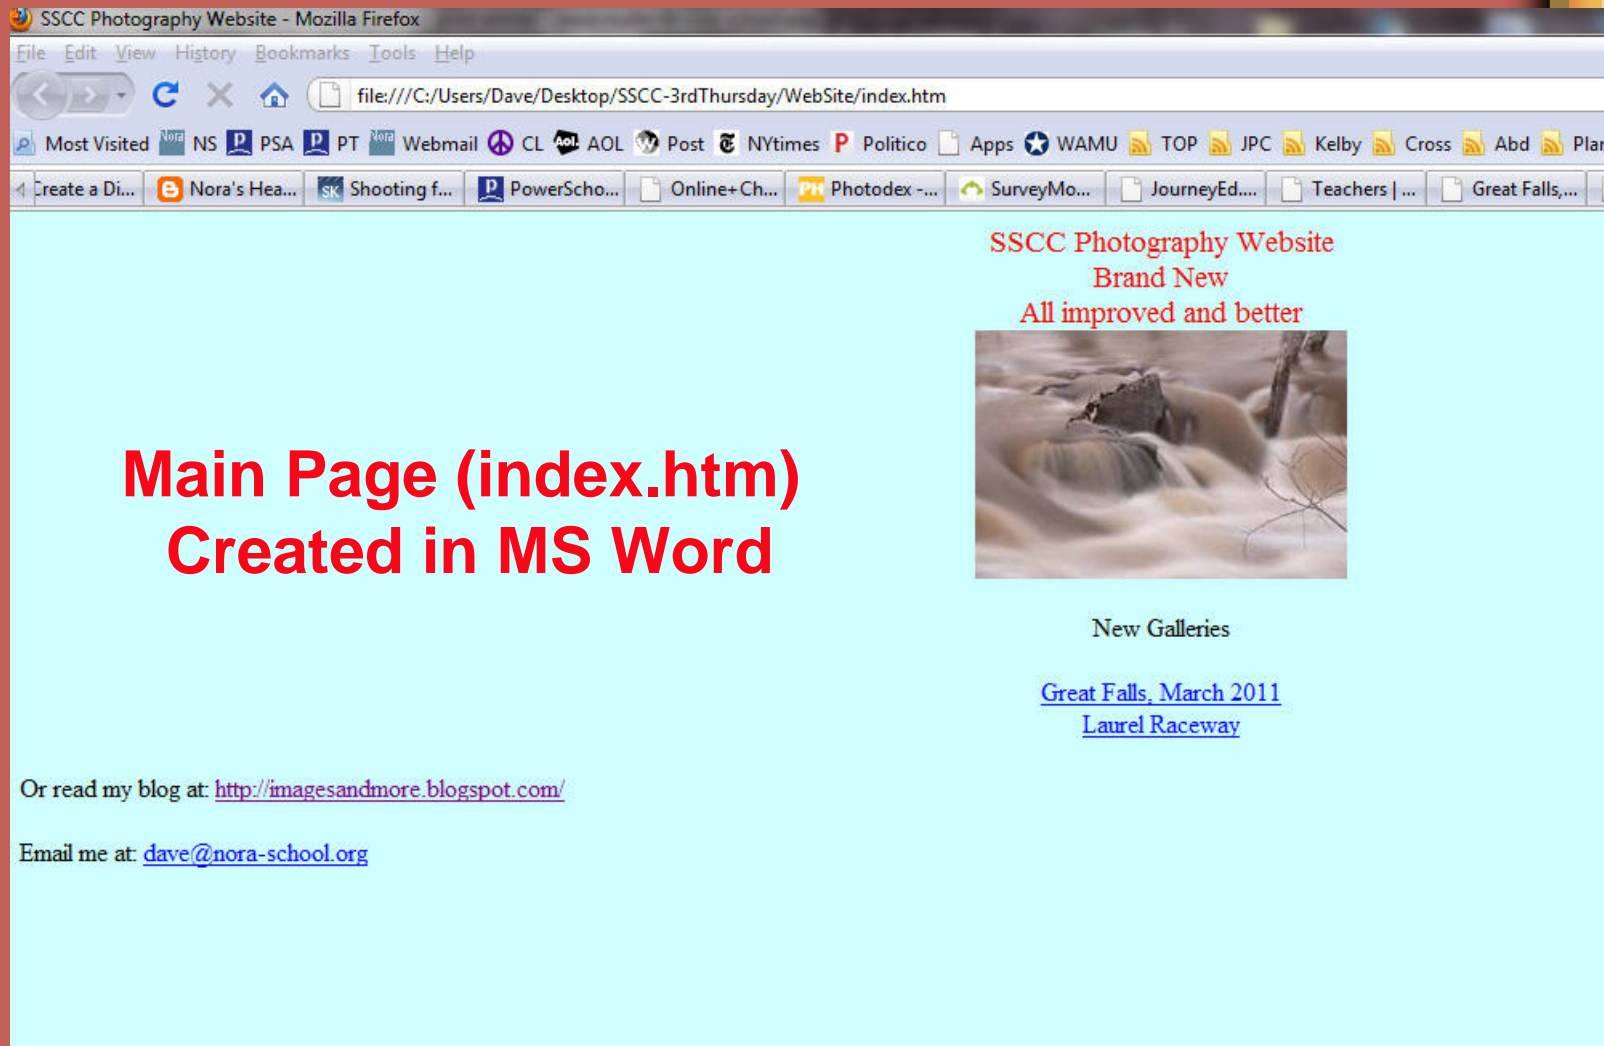

- HTML – Hypertext Markup Language. The basic code for web sites, read by all browsers
- FTP – File Transfer Protocol. A way to move files from a local computer to a remote server.
- Filezilla- (<http://filezilla-project.org/>) a graphic FTP program.
- Doteasy (www.doteasy.com) an inexpensive web hosting company ($25/year, or less when on sale).
- Microsoft FrontPage - an easy HTML writing program.
- Adobe Dreamweaver – a sophisticated HTML writing program. An industry standard. (Think Photoshop vs. Paint).
- Microsoft Word – an even easier way to create HTML, just “Save As” and choose “Save As Type... Web Page”
- Photoshop or Lightroom- To create photo galleries.

Answers to questions...

- Many links can be on the same page. The links can be to the same destination or to different destinations.
- Almost any word processing program can “Save As” a web page (under “type of file”).
- Other web hosting companies offer templates, some with/some without ads.
- Photos are not necessarily well protected, but because they’re small they’re not all that usable for printing.
- Flickr.com and SmugMug.com are other ways to show your work online.

Your turn

- Make your photo galleries
- Make a main page (index.htm)
- Keep it all in the same folder
- Explore web hosting providers (doteasy, godaddy, etc.)

....or.....

Play around with Blogger, Flickr,
SmugMug to get your toes wet!

HAVE FUN

- You can't break anything!
- Just like with your photography, you'll be bad before you'll be good; you'll screw up before you get it right.
- Keep trying... feel free to ask questions! (dave@nora-school.org)
